Brian Butler
REALTOR® | eXp Realty | License # SA701819000

FREE MARKET REPORT

San Tan Valley & Florence September 2026 Market Report

Source: ARMLS (via RapidStats) • Published October 1, 2026 • Updated monthly on thebutlerrealty.com

The Numbers

Metric	This Month	Prior Month / Change
Sold Listings	270	−7.22% vs August
New Listings	456	−8.65% vs August
Active Listings	1,381	+5.10% vs August
Under Contract	337	−1.46% vs August
Avg. Days on Market	95 days	prior-month DOM not reported in this source pull
Months of Supply ($250K–$500K)	4.48	August: 4.32
Sold-to-List Ratio ($250K–$500K)	99.2%	August: 99.2%

ARMLS figures for August 2026 were restated in this month's report. The month-over-month changes above are measured against the restated August figures, so they will not match the August 2026 update as originally published.

What the Numbers Say

San Tan Valley and Florence recorded 270 sold listings in September 2026, down 7.22% from August and down 23.30% from September 2025. New listings totaled 456, down 8.65% from August and up 15.85% from a year ago. Active listings were 1,381, up 5.10% from August and up 13.66% from a year ago. There were 337 listings under contract, down 1.46% from August. Average days on market was 95. In the $250K–$500K range, months of supply was 4.48 (4.32 in August, 2.83 in September 2025) and the sold-to-list ratio was 99.2%, the same as August.

BRIAN'S TAKE

More homes are coming on the market here, and fewer are selling. Active listings in San Tan Valley and Florence are up 13.66% from a year ago and new listings are up 15.85%, while closed sales are down 23.30%. That matches what I'm seeing with my own clients.

In the $250K–$500K range, months of supply is 4.48. A year ago it was 2.83. That number has kept climbing as mortgage rates have moved up. Freddie Mac's weekly average went from 6.95% to 7.03% in the back half of September.

The slowdown is sharper here than across the valley. Closed sales are down 23.30% locally against 15.55% for Maricopa and Pinal counties combined, and active inventory grew 13.66% here against 4.90%. More homes listed, and it's taking longer to sell through them.

How to Read These Numbers

Sold Listings	Homes that closed during the month. A rise or fall here shows how many buyers actually completed purchases.
New Listings	Homes newly put on the market during the month. More new listings means more choices for buyers.
Active Listings	Homes currently for sale. Low inventory means more competition among buyers; high inventory means more choices and room to negotiate.
Under Contract	Homes with an accepted offer that haven't closed yet. It's a look at where sales are heading in the weeks ahead.
Avg. Days on Market	How long homes sit before going under contract. Under 30 days is generally considered fast; over 60 days gives buyers more room.
Months of Supply	How long current inventory would last at the recent sales pace. Under 3 months generally favors sellers, over 6 favors buyers, and 3–6 is considered balanced.
Sold-to-List Ratio	The share of asking price homes actually sell for. Above 100% means homes are selling over asking; below 98% generally means more negotiating room.

Want These Numbers Applied to Your Situation?

Averages for a whole area only go so far. What matters is your neighborhood, your street, and your goals. Changes are measured against August 2026.

Thinking of buying?

Tell me your price range and the areas you like, and I'll walk you through what's actually available and what it takes to win it.

Thinking of selling?

Ask for a free, no-obligation home value analysis based on recent sales near you. See thebutlerrealty.com/home-value.

Call or text 480-810-9255 • Brian@thebutlerrealty.com • thebutlerrealty.com

Brian Butler, REALTOR® | eXp Realty | License # SA701819000, Arizona Department of Real Estate. Data from ARMLS (via RapidStats); ARMLS may revise prior-month figures in later reports. This report is general market information, not financial, investment, or legal advice. Information deemed reliable but not guaranteed.